THE LIVING HISTORY MUSEUM

This living history museum gives you the chance to see the 1840's acted out by real people. These people volunteered to help make this come true, and many little kids in the village believe that it is 1840. Each person is given a job that fits them, such as a blacksmith, a homemaker, a store owner, and a school teacher. Many of the children attend the same school, and do many chores that we would not do in the present time. Some were to fetch water, churn butter, find wood, or make a whole nutritious dinner. Most children are given one outfit.

You can get a look at the way these people lived, and follow and research their way of life. In the building there is a café, and a library. The way you are shown these peoples lives are through glass where you can only see on one side, and hidden cameras. You will enjoy a learning experience along with fun time.

A Candle was used to light the house or a fire because there was no electricity.
